THE GOLDENN STORE

The name of the Indian Princess Pocahontas is popular with Marlinton enterprises. We have already the Pocahontas Times, the Pocahontas Bank, the Pocahontas Hotel, the Pocahontas Bargain House the Pocahontas Furniture Company and the Pocahontas Development Company.

The great pyrotechnic display so widely advertised for November heavens for last week failed to materialize. The great astronomers have now figured out that there is something wrong in the stage machinery of the Leonid Company. The number of "bright spirits who shared each others vigils over the whole world" are a badly sold lot, while we poor earth worms who slumbered and slept have scored a point on the star-gazers.

DUNMORE.

Still the weather continues good

Mr Johnson of Bath county has been here for several days.

Capt E. A. Smith and B. M. Yeager were in town last week.

G. B. Sutton was in town Saturday with a lot of buggies.

C. E. and Reese Pritchard brought in a big load of railroad supplies.

Dr Campbell was operating on the mouth organs here last week

Mrs C. E. Pritchard is able to be out again.

Mrs S. C. Pritchard is confined to her bed.

Mrs Morgan Grimes is up on a visit.

K. D. Sweeker is from New York with a lot of clothing cheap.

Mr Rodgers is getting out a lot of supplies and will build 4 miles of railroad along by Marcus Waugh's.

J. J. Coyner has moved to Clover Lick and is now filling up his store with new goods.

Prof Siegal of Baltimore, and a graduate of Paris, has been in the county fitting up the people with spectacles.

Several men have been looking about timber lands and locations along the river near the mouth of Sitlington's creek. With a bridge across the river at that point it will make a good business place.

We expect to incorporate the town of Dunmore soon. The boundary taken in will extend west as far as McCutchan's, north as Geo. Hoover's, east as far as Kerns south to the Johnie Green station. This will include 7 fine springs of different kinds of water, and some of the best locations in the state for different kinds of business.

The Snake Den Road was represented by various kinds of snakes at court Monday. There were copperheads, rattlesnakes, blowing vipers, and snakes in the grass. We believe $1250 is about one-half enough to build a road to accommodate the public. We expect a bridge built across the river at the mouth of Sitlington's creek some time, and for that reason we have good roads leading to that point on he east side of the river.
Mr Poor.

GLADE HILL.

News is scarce.

The farmers are mostly done shucking corn.

Elmer Gum passed here on his way home from camp.

Deputy Sheets was over at Frost last Saturday.

George Sutton, of Highland, was through here last week with a few buggies for sale.

Rev Puller is holding a series of meetings at Frost.

There was a lively game of football at Frost last Saturday.

The Mt Pleasant school is progressing nicely under the management of Miss Alice McLaughlin.

Mrs Forest Warwick and Miss Lucy Siple passed here last Saturday.

Miss Maude Mason is teaching school on Michael's Peak.

The Baptists will hold a series of meetings at Mt Pleasant schoolhouse the 25 and 26th of this month night and day services.

If Mr Pooh would go over the road from Dunmore to Frost, he would add at least 25 feet more to the wall around Jericho. If the overseers can't make good roads they could undoubtedly call out the hands and pick the rock out of the road at least twice a year.
RUBBER NECK.

Liabilities to the amount of $69,142.13 are scheduled in a petition in voluntary bankruptcy, filed by John Driscol, of Ronceverte. His only assets are his wearing apparel valued at $45. The largest creditors are the bank of Lewisburg, $10,941.10, and the bank of Ronceverte, $7,514.82. Other large creditors are C. E. Steinmeyer, Washington, D. C., $1,392.49; Samuel Workman, Ronceverte, $3,204.71; Amos Barlow, Huntersville, $2,846.12; John W. Harris, trustee, Lewisburg, $2,426.66. Driscol has been extensively engaged in the lumber business. The case was referred to John W. Arbuckle, referee in bankruptcy.—Charleston Gazette.

THE SNAKE DEN ROAD.

The County Court Accepts Offer of $1250 and the Old Road.

The County Court held a very interesting special session last Monday to consider the matter of the Snake Den Road, the only county road in the whole seventy miles of new railroad in this county which is interfered with. The matter has been under consideration for some time. One committee of reviewers reported that a road was practical to be built above the present road. The resident engineer, Mr A. L. Cornell, reported the cost to be such that the railroad would not build it, but take condemnation proceedings. Then Geo. P. Moore, B. M. Yeager, and W. H. Hull were appointed reviewers to see if the matter could be amicably adjusted with the railroad, the people who used the road, and the county court. It was to receive the report of these commissioners that the court met Monday. The committee made a majority and minority report. Messrs Moore and Yeager reported advising the court to take $1000 cash and require the railroad company to open the old road.

The Snake Den road leads thro' a narrow gap in the Greenbrier Valley and was built to avoid two fords, the old road winding across the river. The road accommodates the Driftwood neighborhood which depends upon the town of Dunmore for stores and mills. A number of prominent citizens of the Green Bank district were present and spoke upon the question. Mr Fitzpatrick, connected with the firm of Simms & Enslow, represented the railroad company.

In presenting the report, Mr Geo. P. Moore said in part: That as a member of the county court he had been instrumental in securing the appropriation with which this piece of road was built in the first place. He considered that it was a benefit and had always regarded the mouth of Sitlington's Creek as the proper place to bridge the river. But the coming of the railroad had changed the conditions. Here was a narrow gap ten or fifteen feet wide in controversy. Was it to be used for a county road or a railroad? It could not be used for both. He was opposed to inconveniencing that neighborhood, but they must simply regard it as their misfortune. If the railroad did not utilize it, it would be the whole county's misfortune. He had gone over the ground. He found a cliff nearly perpendicular 400 feet high. The road the neighborhood asked to have built over the cliff would be dangerous in the extreme, and one over which no one would care to drive a buggy with a spirited horse or stock liable to be stampeded. It would have to be considered as a case where Providence had pushed us out. The cliff could not be overcome, unless we were able to reshape the world and level down the cliffs. The committee suggests the way. The only question, in the speaker's opinion, for the court was, as Mr Fitzpatrick had suggested, would they take the offer of the railroad or run the risk of getting more in condemnation proceedings?

Mr B. M. Yeager said, in the course of his remarks that while he did not consider there was any earthly show to build a practicable road over the cliffs, yet admitting that it could be done, nine out of ten travelers would take the old road crossing the river three times to avoid the grade.

Mr W. H. Hull, on the part of the minority, developed quite a gift as a public speaker. He said in part: In apologizing for opposing the will of the majority of the committee, he said that he took what was for him a conscientious and honest view of the matter. He had no prejudice against railroads—on the contrary it was what he had been hoping for since he was a boy. It is not our interest to antagonize the railroad. Indirectly it will benefit us all. Of course we will have to pay for the direct benefits. But a neighborhood has to come out on this road to reach the main county roads. If it be taken by the railroad the law provides that it shall provide as good a road with as few inconveniences as possible. For his part he considered that the narrowness of the gap was the railroad's misfortune and not the people's. If they are suited with the road over the cliffs it is a matter with themselves. If on the other hand, the court decided to sell them the road, $1000 was wholly inadequate. It should be at least from two to three thousand dollars. The county was selling the only good location for a road and they should receive sufficient to build a road to the mouth of Sitlington's Creek by some other route. He urged a re-survey and the appointment of another set of reviewers. All the road except 100 rods of the proposed location over the cliffs is good and that might be raised higher on the mountain ride. Twenty-five families depend on this road for stores or mill.

Mr Cornell in reply to a question said that a route could be built up Unicorn Ridge, to reach the Back Alleghany road for about $2000. The cost of the 100 rods on top of the cliff would be about $3500. It would require a retaining wall on rock, and the roadbed should be at least 25 feet broad.

Mr C. B. Yeager said: We want another road to take the place of this road, and $1000 will not give it to us. Has known the mails to stop for six weeks when the old road crossing the three forks was flooded.

Mr H. M. Moore: The only trouble seems that another road will cost the railroad too much. The 100 rods of the present road has cost $781, to say nothing of the balance of the three miles to be taken. As the present road is in the best location it is not possible for the road to be replaced with $1000. The road was a necessity and should not be lightly given up. The attorney for the railroad had said that if condemnation proceedings were taken the case might go to the Supreme Court. He would say that the people were not afraid of going to the Supreme Court. The speaker seemed to think that that sounded something like a bluff on the part of the railroad company.

Mr J. A. Geiger: What we want is a road. The court is at liberty to take the offer of $1000 if they will promise to lay a levy for the additional amount necessary to give us a road.

Mr Vint: Is overseer of that road and would like to know by what authority it has been obstructed already.

Mr L. M. McClintic, commonwealth's attorney, at the request of the court read the law allowing railroads to condemn county roads in the same manner private property may be taken.

Mr Samuel Sheets, deputy sheriff, presented a petition signed by 85 voters of Green Bank district asking the court to require the road to be built as reported by the first committee.

Mr Fitzpatrick made an offer of $1200 and the old road, it being $200 in excess of the recommendation of the majority of the committee. The court then proposed to take $1400.

Mr B. F. McElwee urged no compromise and wished to risk condemning proceedings.

About dusk the court agreed to take $1250, the railway company to keep open the old road until the railroad is completed.

The court has also tacitly pledged itself to keep the fund of $1250 intact and apply it on a road to take the place of the one taken.

Mrs Frank Dilley.

Mrs Mary Dilley, wife of Frank Dilley, of Laurel Creek, died Saturday morning, November 18, after a brief illness occasioned by fever in a very malignant form. Mrs Dilley was a daughter of John Sharp, near Marlinton. She was a much esteemed person and by her death a large family is sorely bereaved and her neighbors lament the loss of a kind and useful person.

HUNTERSVILLE.

Fine weather, and no stars have fallen yet.

For nice Millinery Goods go to Mrs S. J. Boggs, of Huntersville.

Col Dan O'Connel, of Greenbrier county, moved to town Monday.

Mrs M. A. Beard is making preparations to move to Lewisburg soon.

S. J. Boggs, of Camp No. 1, spent Saturday and Sunday with his family.

H. M. Lockridge, from Camp No. 2, spent Sunday at his home in Huntersville.

POCAHONTAS COUNTY TOPICS

"Good morning, Miss Moon!"

"How do you do, Mrs Jones? Have you been to the Golden Store also?"

"Yes, my dear; what a fine line of dress goods to suit all tastes in crepes, crepons, broadclothes and serges."

"Yes; I can tell you the Goldon Store keeps up the reputation for having the best line of capes garnet, blue, green and black. They are certainly cheap at $1.35 as the material would cost more. They are made up and trimmed up to date, and strictly all wool."

"Have you seen the new waist he has just got in with lapels only $1.75

"I want you to know that the line of black dress skirts at one dollar and fifty cents are very reasonable."

"I was charmed with that line of overcoats I saw up in the clothing room. They are made of heavy covet cloth in light shades, also black and blue kerseys. You can get a respectable looking overcoat for $3.75—and it will wear well."

"Bye, bye, dear; tell your mother to come over to see me, and I will show her some nice counterpins, white and colored, I bought for ninety-five cents at
